

30 Mar 2005

Swedish Travellers give Changi Airport the Thumbs Up

Third award for Changi since start of the year

Business travellers have voted Singapore Changi Airport the 'Best International Airport' in the world, in a survey conducted by Swedish business travel magazine, Affärsresenären. The magazine asked respondents in Sweden to name and grade an airport they thought was the best.

This is the first time Affärsresenären introduced an airport category in the survey, which has been running for seven years. Changi was ranked ahead of Denmark's Copenhagen and Netherland's Amsterdam airports. The award was presented at a ceremony held in conjunction with a travel trade fair in Gothenburg, Sweden on 18 March 2005.

Changi Airport received two other awards in February 2005. Buying Business Travel magazine gave Changi the 'Best Worldwide Airport' award in an inaugural reader survey among business travel decision-makers and company purchasers in the UK.

Readers of another UK-based publication, Wanderlust, also voted Changi the top Worldwide Airport award for the fourth consecutive time.